

Person-Centred Health and Care Network

Connecting people with person-centred health and care best practice

What is the Person-Centred Health and Care Network?

The Person-Centred Health and Care Network aims to provide networking opportunities by connecting people working in health and social care with an interest in developing and improving person-centred approaches to care and support.

Who can join?

Health and social care staff and anyone with an interest in person-centred care and quality improvement.

What does membership include?

- Access to an online interactive community page for sharing and learning
- Regular updates from the person-centred health and care team
- Access to person-centred care improvement tools, resources and publications
- Invitation to networking events and workshops
- Help and support for using online social media platforms

How will I benefit from joining this network?

- Peer-to-peer learning and support
- Being part of a network supports community building and collaboration
- Information is organised and filtered, making it easier to find what you are looking for
- Connecting with others can facilitate learning
- Improved awareness about person-centred health and care improvement approaches
- Helps identify opportunities for development
